

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

The most interesting social event of yesterday was the celebration in St. James Episcopal Church, at 9 o'clock P. M., of the wedding of Miss Mildred Minor Woodward, daughter of Mr. Woodward, Minor Woodward, and Mrs. Mary Stewart Woodward, to Mr. Joseph Smith Cochran, son of Mr. James C. and Mrs. Elizabeth Brooke Cochran, of Staunton, Va.

Kelley chancel decorations at the church were carried out in palms, white peonies and smilax. The music was directed by Mrs. Conway Gordon, organist of the church. The pastor, the Rev. William Meade Clark, officiated.

The bride walked to the altar with her father, who gave her away. She was wearing a white gown, embroidered in Japan, with cherry blossoms. Her ornaments were pearls, and her veil caught with pearls and orange blossoms. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

North Carolina Supreme Court So Holds in Interesting Decision as to Jurors Talking.

GREENSBORO, N. C., June 4.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has just rendered a decision of very great importance to all citizens who are liable to service as grand jurors in Federal courts, and of much interest to the legal profession. The case grew out of the indictment in the Federal court at Statesville, three years ago, of the old Nick Williams Distilling Company, when Judge Boyd had several of the grand jurors who acted when the bill was found attached and fined for contempt of court for discussing what occurred at the taking of testimony. The defendants appealed from this decision, and all means were argued for them by Judge W. P. Bynum, of Greensboro, and Charles A. Moore, of Asheville, while District Attorney Holton and Assistant District Attorney Coble presented the case for the government.

Is a New Question.

The Circuit Court overrules Judge Boyd's decision, and holds that the court, which is written by Judge Dayton, with the following comment on Judge Boyd's position in the matter: "We can well understand how a trial judge, who is charged with the responsibility of securing a fair and impartial enforcement of the law, should be exceedingly anxious to use all means within his power to prevent the slightest interference with the administration of justice on the part of any one who may show disposition to unduly oppress the citizen, or, on the other hand, through sympathy or a misguided notion as to what is proper, to do anything calculated to hinder or embarrass the court in the due administration of justice. We fully appreciate the earnestness of Judge Boyd, whom the matters involved in this case were pending felt that he was
